

IN THE GROOVE

Note from the Composer

At the final concert of Batawagama 2011, we struck upon the idea of writing a work that both Bata and Gama bands could play on their own and then join together for a “grand finale” at the end of the concert. In 2011, the Gama version of “Go For It” was a shortened version of the Bata version. The Bata band played the first half of Go For It and the Gama Band joined them for the last half.

This year, both Bata and Gama play the entire work In The Groove on their own and then play the entire work together for the finale. However, there are two differences between the two versions. First, the Gama version is age appropriate for a junior high band. The ranges of the instruments aren't as extreme. The Bata version of “In the Groove” is more dissonant than the Gama version.

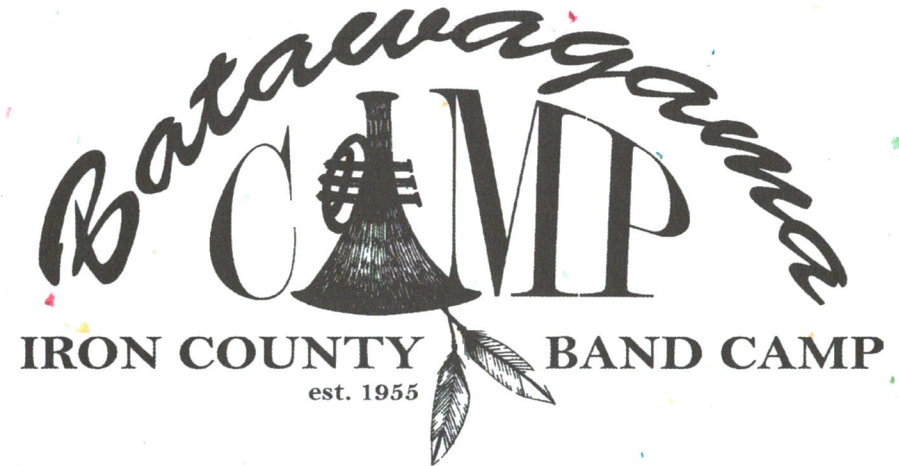

“In the Groove” is as simple as its name sounds. It is light and uncomplicated and includes themes that are catchy and fun to play. There are two main theme groups that alternate throughout the work. The first theme group is the catchy theme (written with Batawagama kids in mind!) The second theme is derived from the first and is more lyrical and tuneful.

Both themes come together at the end of the piece with the lyrical tune becoming more dominant until we have one last hurrah from the “catchy theme”.

Dr. Robert Hanson

A heartfelt thank you is due for the two great band conductors, the incredible instrumental faculty and the entire camp staff that makes BATAWAGAMA such a special place.
